

Seven Poems by Dah

Balance

Too much light
and one will go blind

Too much dark
and one will fall
deeper into darkness

It is best to find
balance
between Light and Dark

Cancellation

An ego driven species,
we have failed.

The time is coming,
a final disbelief
at losing this world.

We are no longer
needed, no longer trusted.

Interconnection

With our belongings
and trappings / look at what we've done
to this planet

Touch the sea / smell it know from where we have germinated

Shifting

In order to survive,
change,

in order to change,
turn

Directionless

Born to live / a short distance of time, tormented,

then / leaving earth
in an unnamed direction, and for whose benefit?

Lament, Again Lament

This inner house / of emotions:
last breath,
a scar from the highest light pulled and yanked and burnt to dust.

We are wounded by death / deaths / and it's not a benign wound.

There is no Forevermore: untamable destiny / in front of us,
mortality's vortex.

Drops

If each drop of darkness is a broken star

if each part of evil is a clump of that darkness

then
stomping out the stars,
will evil be gone?